For immediate release:

VERSALIFT UK Appoints New Service Provider for the Republic of Ireland

Market leading vehicle access platform manufacturer, Versalift has appointed Mooretown Precision Engineering Ltd as its new service provider for the Republic of Ireland. In addition to the support already available directly from Versalift, this appointment strengthens the Company's commitment to aftersales and customer service in Ireland.

Established in 1999, Mooretown Precision Engineering specialises in manufacturing, truck body building and access equipment maintenance. Their current customer base includes councils, utility and telecom companies, electrical contractors, rental companies and end users, many of whom are existing Versalift customers. The family-run business employs 12 staff in its office and workshop based in Mooretown, Ratoath, County Meath.

Mooretown will provide service support for both new and existing platforms, of which there are 1000 units, the majority of which are insulated. They will undertake repairs, inspections (GA1's) servicing, refurbishments and warranty repairs.

Noel Carey, Managing Director for Mooretown Precision Engineering said: "We are pleased to be appointed as authorised service agents for Versalift. Many of the companies we provide a service for have Versalift units and require back-up support and warranty here. We are investing in training for our team of engineers and look forward to continued success between our two companies."

Neil Ashton, Product Support Manager at Versalift UK said: “Noel and his team at Mooretown Precision Engineering have over 20 years of experience in the access business and are well respected and used by all of our current customers. This appointment will help us improve stock levels and increase the number of service engineers on the road to improve response times. We look forward to working with Noel and his team.”
